

Recording a Butterfly Transect Training Course

Monday 28th April 10:00AM to 2:30PM

Buchan Country Park, Crawley

Are you interested in learning how to identify and record butterflies for conservation?

Recording butterflies on a transect (a fixed route) provides an indicator of the health and status of local and national butterfly populations. This in turn helps to inform conservation effort. Recording takes place weekly between April and September.

Butterfly Conservation Sussex volunteers and the Park's Countryside Ranger will run the course. The course will be a mixture of classroom learning and an opportunity to practice on one of the Park's existing transect routes.

This course is free, but donations are welcome.
